

Garage Files – The Best Tools In The Garage

We here at MBA are tool dorks. We love to work on our bikes in the garage late into the night, dialing in our machines for the ride the next day. We love it when a new tool comes into our shop, especially when we've been asking for a year, "Why doesn't somebody make a tool for this?" This is a collection of those tools that have been lifesavers for our crew—ones that are incredibly functional, and those that are simply too cool to leave out of the mix. This month's "Garage Files" is all about the tools you didn't know were out there but will certainly want. If you are not in the market for new tools, you should probably stop reading right now, because there are some tools that you will undoubtedly want in your home workshop after seeing this article.

If you're into bling, or work at a shop that needs a torque wrench to last a lifetime, there's no substitute for the Effetto Mariposa Giustaforza II. This precise, anodized wrench oozes quality and craftsmanship. It has a range from 2–16 Newton meters and can be sent back to the factory for rebuilding and recalibration to make it good as new many times over.